

Hai Sia is a place where I built a strong relationship at, and at the same time, it reminds me that this is how relationships are built even out of Hai Sia. They have taught me building relationships can bring me further in life, and many times, it is not about who I am.

Introduction

Jotham is a photographer based in Singapore who handles both local and overseas assignments. An artist who constantly challenges himself to work beyond his comfort zone, Jotham's repertoire includes documentaries, portraiture, and products. He has been fascinated by the process of photography since young, and finds excitement in the photography process that eventually coalesces into a single image. Jotham believes in the endless possibilities of photography, and that photographs serve to showcase beauty and depth.

Collaboration with Hai Sia

Jotham featured Hai Sia in his showcase, titled 'Guanxi', at the 'Creativity in Pulses' special exhibition.

Relationship explores the idea of Guanxi in Chinese culture, and is an exploration of the network of dynamic interpersonal, cultural, business, familial linkages that serve as bridges between individuals. Using photography to document this immense, often unseen, network, the audience is invited to explore this social network of people, objects, places, whether fleeting or ingrained in our memories.
